

UTAH CULTURAL CELEBRATION CENTER

QUARTERLY DIVISION AWARD

I would like to nominate the Utah Cultural Celebration Center for the Quarterly Division Award.

The Utah Cultural Celebration Center opened in 2003 with the vision of providing a place for the community to join together to celebrate the various cultures that are present here in West Valley City. This is a broad vision, and it certainly is not an easy task to bring many cultures and communities together to celebrate one another's differences.

Through the hard work of its staff, the Utah Cultural Celebration Center has been the venue of many noteworthy events; including the traveling Smithsonian exhibit Key Ingredients: America by Food, a one of a kind exhibit by world-renowned artist Arnold Friberg, a visit by former Mexican President Vicente Fox, and numerous exhibits and displays by artists from around the world. The staff of the Utah Cultural Celebration Center has not only made the facility a success, but they have truly fulfilled the vision of the Center and continue to raise the bar for events held there.

The high caliber events presented at the Utah Cultural Celebration Center have not only provided exceptional opportunities for West Valley City residents, but have introduced the facility to audiences from across the state and around the world. The staff's hard work and diligence in fulfilling the vision of the Utah Cultural Celebration Center proves that they are dedicated to the success of the facility and of West Valley City, and that they are deserving of the Quarterly Division Award.

Thank you,
Paul Isaac
